

Google's deep CIA and NSA connections

Eric Sommer

The Western media is currently full of articles reporting Google's denial that it cooperated in a government program to massively spy on American and foreign citizens by accessing data from Google's servers and those of other U.S. software companies.

The mainstream media has, however, almost completely failed to report that Google's denial, and its surface concern over 'human rights', is historically belied by their deep involvement with some of the worst human rights abuses on the planet:

Google is, in fact, a key participant in U.S. military and CIA intelligence operations involving torture; subversion of foreign governments; illegal wars of aggression; and military occupations of countries which have never attacked the U.S. and which have cost hundreds of thousands of lives in Afghanistan, Iraq, Pakistan, and elsewhere.

To begin with, as reported previously in the Washington Post and elsewhere, Google is the supplier of the customized core search technology for 'Intellipedia, a highly-secured online system where 37,000 U.S. spies and related personnel share information and collaborate on their devious errands.

Agencies such as the so-called 'National Security Agency', or NSA, which is implicated in the current 'spying on Americans' scandal, have also purchased servers using Google-supplied search technology which processes information gathered by U.S. spies operating all over the planet.

In addition, Google is linked to the U.S. spy and military systems through its Google Earth software venture. The technology behind this software was originally developed by Keyhole Inc., a company funded by Q-Tel <http://www.iqt.org/>, a venture capital firm which is in turn openly funded and operated on behalf of the CIA.

Google acquired Keyhole Inc. in 2004. The same base technology is currently employed by U.S. military and intelligence systems in their quest, in their own words, for "full-spectrum dominance" of the planet.

Moreover, Google's connection with the CIA and its venture capital firm extends to sharing at least one key member of personnel. In 2004, the Director of Technology Assessment at In-Q-Tel, Rob Painter, moved from his old job directly serving the CIA to become 'Senior Federal Manager' at Google.

As Robert Steele, a former CIA case officer has put it: Google is "in bed with" the CIA.

Google's Friends spy on millions of Internet Users

Given Google's supposed concern with 'human rights' and with user-privacy, it's worth noting that Wired magazine reported some time ago that Google's friends at In-Q-Tel, the investment arm of the CIA, invested in Visible Technologies, a software firm specialized in 'monitoring social media'.

The 'Visible' technology can automatically examine more than a million discussions and posts on blogs, online forums, Flickr, YouTube, Twitter, Amazon, and so forth each day. The technology also 'scores' each online item, assigning it a positive, negative or mixed or neutral status, based on parameters and terms set by the technology operators. The information, thus boiled down, can then be more effectively scanned and read by human operators.

The CIA venture capitalists at In-Q-Tel previously said they will use the technology to monitor social media operating in other countries and give U.S. spies early-warning detection on how issues are playing internationally, according to spokesperson Donald Tighe. There is every possibility that the technology can also be used by the U.S. intelligence operatives to spy on domestic social movements and individuals inside the U.S.

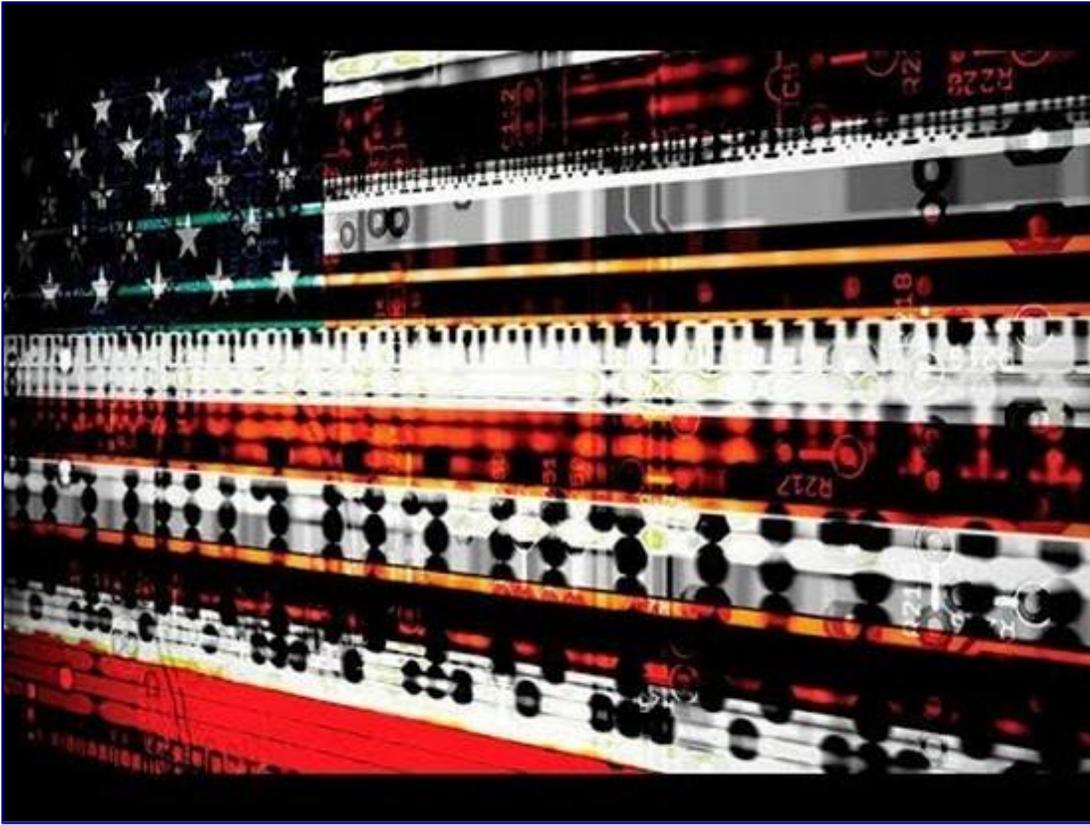

Finally, Obama during his recent meeting with Chinese president Xi, again more-or-less accused China of cyber intrusions into U.S. government computers. There has, however, been a curious absence from the statements emanating from Google, from U.S. government sources, and from U.S. media reports of truly substantive evidence linking the Chinese government with the alleged break-in attempts. Words like 'sophisticated' and 'suspicion' have appeared in the media to suggest that the Chinese government is responsible for the break-ins. That may be so. But it is striking that the media has seemingly asked no tough questions as to what the evidence behind the 'suspicions' might be.

It should be noted that the U.S. government and its intelligence agencies have a long history of rogue operations intended to discredit governments or social movements with whom they happen to disagree. To see how far this can go, one need only recall the sordid history of disinformation, lies, and deceit used to frighten people into supporting the Iraq war.

Whether the past attacks on U.S. government systems, Google email, et al originated from the Chinese government, from the U.S. intelligence operatives, or from elsewhere, one thing is clear: A company that supplies the CIA with key intelligence technology; supplies mapping software which can be used for barbarous wars of aggression and drone attacks which kill huge numbers of innocent civilians; and which in general is deeply intertwined with the CIA and the U.S. military machines, which spy on millions, the company cannot be motivated by real concern for the human rights and lives of the people in the U.S. and on the planet.

Google the CIA Monopoly Company We All Need To Do Something About

Posted by Ryan Herbison |

“It Should be possible for computers to detect malicious misleading and incorrect information and essentially have you not see it. We’re not arguing for censorship, we are arguing that you just take it off the page make it harder to find.” – Eric Schmidt – former CEO of Google

Welcome back beautiful and amazing human beings. That was Eric Schmidt the former CEO of Google who now runs Alphabet which is Google’s parent company. He was saying that they won’t censor misleading information, they will just put it in a place where no one can find it. That is the very definition of censorship, and it's just more 1984 Orwellian disinformation doublespeak.

We are going to be talking about the multi-billion-dollar CIA Monopoly company that eventually wants to control the world. I am of course talking about Google which I see as big of a threat as the former robber baron industrialists and banksters like the Rockefellers of old. The new elites who want to control everything have learned that individuals who have the same goals and aspirations like the Rockefellers are vulnerable unless they have bigger institutions behind them. Like for example name-brand companies like Google, Facebook, Amazon, and Twitter to effectively reach the same goals that these individuals had.

This Behemoth multi-billion-dollar monopoly CIA company also has some other abilities which we will discuss later.

Google Is The Biggest Lobbying Spender In Tech

by Tyler Durden
Jul 25, 2017 12:35 AM

34
SHARES

Let me preface this with how one of the biggest robber barons in the early nineteen-hundreds was able to gain power in influence. I am talking about John D. Rockefeller who had his Standard Oil trust broken up by the Supreme Court in 1911.

May 15, 1911 | Supreme Court Orders Standard Oil to Be Broken Up

BY THE LEARNING NETWORK MAY 15, 2012 4:02 AM

On May 15, 1911, the Supreme Court ordered the dissolution of Standard Oil Company, ruling it was in violation of the Sherman Antitrust Act.

The Ohio businessman John D. Rockefeller entered the oil industry in the 1860s and in 1870, and founded Standard Oil with some other business partners. Mr. Rockefeller expanded Standard Oil by buying its competitors and using its size to receive benefits not available to smaller companies, like, for example, discount rates from railroads.

Lawrence P. Ames/Library of Congress
John D. Rockefeller, the founder of Standard Oil, in 1909.

---

Historic Headlines

Mr. Rockefeller became one of the most influential and Powerful families in the United States through his horrible business practices. For example, he used his monopoly and power to build gas stations next to local small-business gas stations. He would lower the price of gas by a considerable amount and efficiently put the small local business out of business. He would then buy it for pennies on the dollar and have a monopoly on fuel prices in that region.

Something very similar is happening with something that is far more valuable than gasoline, and that is information. I know there's a big portion of our audience that is for free market capitalism that are anarchists that are Libertarians but please before freaking out and talking about 'muh roads' just please read thru first. I am very interested in your comments.

Now Google is not just in the business of search engines but is also financially supporting left-leaning policy shops. Alphabet Google's parent company has helped raise a liberal army intent on hashing out a policy to help influence US policy to their benefactors' advantage.

"People Are So Afraid Of Google Now": Here's Why

by Tyler Durden
Aug 30, 2017 7:47 PM

933
SHARES

Google, pardon Alphabet's efforts to influence the American political discourse (not to mention presidential election outcome) stretch far beyond the company's penchant for subtly disadvantaging independent and conservative thinkers on platforms like YouTube. By financially supporting left-leaning policy shops, Google's parent company has helped raise a liberal army intent on hashing out policy minutiae to help bend US policy to their benefactors' advantage.

What happens when these independent think tanks that are supported by Google publish something that questions the authority of Google. One researcher at the left-leaning New American think-tank learned that the punishment is swift and severe. His name is Barry Lynn, and he dared ask the question is Google a monopoly? He did spend years studying the growing power of tech giants like Google and Facebook, and he believes the answer is yes. That opinion has cost him his job. That's because Google funds this scholarly research and supposedly independent think-tank the New American Foundation that he was working for.

August 30, 2017 2:48 pm

Sure Looks Like Google Got an Anti-Monopoly Critic Fired

By Brian Feldman

Photo: Christophe Morin/IP3/Getty Images

Google is a multi-billion-dollar advertising company, but because it controls a huge portion of the globe's flow of information, it's managed to represent itself as something more — an elite institution dedicated to furthering human knowledge and encouraging freedom. Its parent company Alphabet funds, sometimes at a loss, scientific “moonshots”; one subsidiary, Jigsaw, is devoted to developing technologies that will “make people in the world safer”; and it funds scholarly research and

According to the New York Times shortly after he posted an article that was publicized Eric Schmidt got on the phone with this supposedly independent think-tank. His blog post was temporarily removed, and Barry Lynn was fired. In his article, Barry Lynn mentioned how he agreed with the recent E.U. decision to levy a record 2.4 billion dollar fine on Google for breaching antitrust laws and for abusing its market dominance. Lynn wrote,

“Google’s market power is one of the most critical challenges for competition policymakers in the world today.”

I believe Google’s latest actions show how this multi-billion-dollar monopoly CIA-funded network that looks like it can never be stopped has a huge weak spot, of course, is government regulation.

Now hold on, calm down there, I see you typing away you free-market capitalist. Calm down I do believe there’s a solution outside of government regulation that I will talk about later in this video. I do not believe that government regulation will work primarily because Google is one of the biggest lobbyists in Washington DC and spends millions of dollars trying to influence DC lawmakers. They also receive government subsidies all the way up to 630 million dollars. Our tax dollars are being used to finance the rise of Google. A company that many analysts say is funded and started by the CIA.

The United States Intelligence Community funded in nurtured and incubated Google as part of a drive to dominate the world through control of information. Seed funding by the NSA and CIA. Google was merely the first among the plethora of private-sector startups co-opted by U.S. intelligence to retain information superiority. This is not a conspiracy theory even Obama said it himself that,

“Google, Facebook would not exist without government funding.”

Obama: 'Google, Facebook Would Not Exist' Without Government Funding

By Fred Lucas | April 6, 2012 | 10:19 AM EDT

This is the same Google that has a secret alliance with the National Security Agency. They work hand-in-hand with them and have virtually unchecked surveillance powers on you the American public. That is why the man you saw at the beginning of this video Eric Schmidt is now helping run the Pentagon surveillance program.

Former Google CEO Eric Schmidt picked to run the Pentagon's surveillance programs

To add insult to injury Google has also moved billions of dollars to Bermuda to avoid paying taxes.

Forbes / Tech / #TaxTime

Google Moved Billions Of Dollars To Bermuda To Avoid Taxes... Again

Abigail Tracy, CONTRIBUTOR

I am a senior news producer for Forbes' technology

channel FULL BIO ▾

This is why I believe the argument that Google is a private company and they do what they want is entirely invalid.

The free market capitalist argument doesn't work for Google since they are subsidized by U.S. intelligence agencies and by U.S. government seed funding. It beat out its competitors who didn't comply with the U.S. government. This is a company that continues to get subsidies from your taxes as they are working with the US government to spy on you. They're just switching back and forth. They use socialism to get more power, money, and control while relying on subsidies while at the same time saying that if anyone criticizes us you're just an anti-capitalist. That's bull-crap.

Before I get into solutions that we the people could take to prevent this monopoly from getting even bigger and dominating further. I want to talk about some of the more Sinister things that we have to understand right now.

It's not just myself many other people see Google as a significant threat to our way of life. It's Google, not the US government that is building the future.

PERSONAL TECH

Google, Not the Government, Is Building the Future

Farhad Manjoo

STATE OF THE ART

MAY 17, 2017

They're developing deep learning A.I. (artificial intelligence) systems whose abilities will be way more powerful and influential than say a representative government.

The Amazing Ways Google Uses Deep Learning AI

Bernard Marr, CONTRIBUTOR
FULL BIO

Opinions expressed by Forbes Contributors are their own.

Deep learning is the area of artificial intelligence where the real magic is happening right now. Traditionally computers, while being very fast, have not been very smart – they have no ability to learn from their mistakes and have to be given precise instructions in order to carry out any task.

GEORGES GOBET/AFP/Getty Images

Julian Assange even said that,

“Google is not what it seems” and they can “do things that the CIA cannot.”

Julian Assange – ‘Google is Not What it Seems’ – They ‘Do Things the CIA Cannot’

By Claire Bernish · November 14, 2016

Researchers and scientists have concluded that Google could rig elections through their search algorithm which could easily shift the voting preferences of undecided voters by 20% or more. Up to 80% in some demographic groups and they could do it with virtually no one knowing that they are being manipulated.

Has Google Become A Major Threat To Democracy In America?

by Tyler Durden

Aug 31, 2017 11:22 AM

2016

How Google Could Rig the 2016 Election

Google has the ability to drive millions of votes to a candidate with no one the wiser.

By ROBERT EPSTEIN | August 19, 2015

While they become more powerful by the day, they are waging a censorship campaign against news organizations that publish content which conflicts with the narrative of the Washington establishment. Not only have they proven ability to rig search results and to hurt the consumer but through their companies have been blatantly censoring content. Waging war on alternative media to bankrupt independent journalism.

Google and You Tube Censorship Exposed: Terrorists Get Free Pass While Alternative Media is Demonetized / Buried by Algorithmic Search Engine

clarityofsignal  56 in news

21 hours ago

Which for many years now Google has been severely destroying our income. Often to the point throughout my career where I didn't know if I was able to continue my operation since Google decided to cut off my monetization. Of course, a lot of people are affected it's not just me. What is very concerning about what's happening right now with Google is the fact that they're choosing to go after independent media as their first Target. Not terrorist videos or even disturbing videos for pedophiles on their network. Which demonstrates to me another very weak spot for Google, it shows how afraid of real independent media they truly are and how much of an effect we're having.

Google, YouTube waging "demonetization" WAR on alternative media to bankrupt independent journalism

Wednesday, April 05, 2017 by Mike Adams
Tags: Censorship, demonetization, extremist, Google, independent media, jihad, Liberal Fundamentalism, Orwellian, YouTube

EVIDENCE YOUTUBE IS CENSORING CONTENT

📅 29 OCT 2016 👤 POSTED BY RYAN CRISTIAN

1 COMMENT

Knowing what we know what is the best way to stop Google from getting more power, money, and control. The answer is straightforward. It may be more convenient, cheaper and easier to use Google services just like it was cheaper to use that gas station. Knowing what we know now and sharing this information with your friends and family members. Spreading it to as many people as you can you could take away this company's main driving force.

How Google Rigs Search and Hurts Consumers

Michael Krieger | Posted Friday Jul 7, 2017 at 11:39 am

That, of course, is you and your information. You have to understand when something is free you are the product. This company is only as powerful as it is right now because of our participation. We can take that away we could use alternatives search engines like Duck Duck Go instead of Google. We should set up Firefox browser instead of Chrome. You can start using alternative social media accounts like steemit.com. A service which helps you and me raise cryptocurrencies just by participating in their system.

The solutions go on and on and on because you have to understand the government which is so intertwined with Google will not regulate Google. It is up to us and only us to do this vital job. Now I understand by doing this video relying on YouTube as the platform to spread this which is owned by Google I am eventually shooting myself in the foot and taking the chance of totally being de-platformed from the biggest platform that I operate on.

Which is this YouTube channel make sure to go to wearechange.com and put yourself on our email list. We're not sending out emails yet but we will when they take us down. Understand that without your participation and your donations whether through PayPal or Bitcoin I would not be able to be here. You're more important than ever. Please take some actions together cohesively we can make a major difference in this world.

I love you guys thank you again.